Violence Free Families

This group has been a national charity since 2009 and is the only national charity solely dedicated to family violence prevention.

Violence Free Families has been formed out of widespread community concern about family violence and its effect on children, families, adults, workplaces and the wider community. The aim is to reduce all types of family violence: physical, psychological, emotional, financial, sexual, and to do this by: developing new types of prevention programs supporting others in their work with perpetrators researching the most effective interventions increasing community awareness. They have developed an online, interactive program so that people in all area can access the programs.
